SOCIOLOGY 570(01) Domination & Resistance

Course Syllabus

Spring 2018
Time: Monday 1:00 to 3:40 PM
Location: Davison Hall, #128

Paul Hirschfield, PhD.
Office: Davison Hall, #38
phirschfield@sociology.rutgers.edu
Fax: 732-932-6067

Course web-site: http://sakai.rutgers.edu/

Office Hours: Monday 11:50 a.m.-12:50 p.m. or by appointment (Wed. preferred)
Davison Hall, Room 38, 848-932-7868

Purpose

The central goal of this course is to understand the rise of, the inter-dynamics among, and the actual and potential success of various resistance movements and forces, mostly in the United States but also overseas. Particular examples that will fall under our sociological gaze are civil disobedience, the Black Panther Party, Anonymous, Antifa, Black Lives Matter, Occupy Wall Street, Wikileaks, the Arab Spring, digital activism, the MeToo movement, and the Anti-Trump resistance movement. Our discussions and analyses of resistance organizations and the movements they represent and advance will be situated mostly within two fields of sociological theory and research. First, key works within the sociology of power, domination, and social control will help illuminate both the rise of resistance movements and the various ways in which domination and resistance reinforce and constitute each other. Second, we will examine various theoretical and empirically-based perspectives on resistance and resistance movements. These diverse works are certain to provoke rich discussions and analyses regarding why resistance takes particular forms in particular contexts and why it succeeds and fails.

Required Readings

Readings, unless otherwise noted, will be available via Sakai (under Resources). Some are available via hyper-links. I expect to make some reading substitutions during the semester. When an abundance of reading material is assigned, I will try to convey to you which readings or portions of readings are most important. I will provide discussion questions in advance of the sessions on particular readings. My intent is not to overwhelm you with readings but rather to provide many resources for your papers and to supply a variety of perspectives to inform and enrich responses to discussion questions.

Course Format

This course will be taught in a seminar format. As a seminar, the course emphasizes discussion and writing. To encourage independence of thought, students are required to be lead discussant for two class sessions and to determine the specific focus of their term paper. I will also provide short lectures on the material as necessary.

Course Grade

Your grade for the course will be apportioned (100 point scale) in the following manner:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Participation:</th>
<th>30%</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Commentaries:</td>
<td>30%</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Final Paper:</td>
<td>40%</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Participation. Thirty percent of your grade will be based on the quantity and quality of your classroom participation. Absences from class without a valid excuse count against your participation grade. I encourage students who have not done the applicable reading to let others respond to questions first. This helps keep class discussion pertinent and flowing. Classroom participation that detracts from focused, intellectual discourse and an open, congenial classroom atmosphere will not improve your grade. You will sign up for or be assigned two sessions in which you will be that session’s designated “go-to” person (i.e. lead discussant), especially for the tougher questions. You should be prepared to both answer and ask discussion questions on that day. If you have a phobia about talking in class, please see me. We may agree upon a way to make up some of the lost points such as submitting additional commentaries (see below) or written responses to discussion questions. All students will be asked to give a short presentation about their final papers on the last day of class (April 30), which will count toward your participation grade.

Writing Assignments

The course has one major writing assignment and several small ones. The small assignments are an attempt to advance your thought process and enhance classroom discussion rather than ends in themselves. Beginning January 29 you may, prior to class, record and submit via Sakai some reflections on the reading for that week in the equivalent of three to four double spaced pages. Feel free to focus your commentaries on some of the discussion questions that I distribute. Organization and style are secondary grading criteria for these commentaries. I am mainly interested in the depth of coherent and rational thought that you are giving to the readings, both individually and comparatively. In these papers, I especially encourage you to ask critical questions of the readings and to integrate prior readings, considering, as Paul Mclean puts it, “how one author might interrogate another.” You may also use these commentaries as a vehicle to test out, extend, and refine ideas for your final paper. Just be careful not to focus your writing too narrowly; it should be clear from the piece that you have done most of the reading for that week. References to recommended readings are also well received. You may submit up to seven commentaries for a grade, but your grade will be based only on the top five (6 points each).
You are also required to write a final paper, 15-20 double-spaced pages long (10 to 15 for undergraduate credit), which requires research and critical analysis. All papers will be judged on the depth and breadth of analysis, the quality of the writing, the sufficient and proper integration of course materials, and additional considerations specified later. Papers should reflect an understanding of both course readings and issues and topics raised in class discussion. Please discuss your choice of paper topic with me by e-mail or in person by March 12th. You are welcome to request feedback on paper outlines or summaries. However, I will not read and comment on rough drafts of papers.

Please submit your papers in MS Word format through Sakai. It is your responsibility to make sure that your papers transmit properly, on time, and without viruses or macros.

Clear violations of academic integrity will be forwarded to the Graduate Chair (or through the standard adjudicative process if you are an undergraduate). For more information on the University’s uniform policies and procedures concerning academic integrity violations please see http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/academic-integrity-policy/.

Late assignments will be deducted an additional half grade (a six-point penalty on a 100 point scale) for each additional day late beginning after the time the assignment is due. Whenever possible, no-penalty extensions should be requested and approved in advance. If an extended illness or family situation prevents you from attending class and completing your assignments on time, please request a new paper due date to ensure your paper is evaluated properly and fairly.

Communications

E-mails. Though I encourage e-mail communication, please do not expect an immediate reply. Please first ask a classmate for information that I provided in a class that you missed.

List-serve. A course list-serve will automatically send messages to your official e-mail address on record with Rutgers University. The main purpose of the list-serve is for me to send you discussion questions as well as updates and reminders. Occasionally I may post items to the list-serve that are relevant to a pending assignment. It is your responsibility to check your e-mail regularly. As a rule, I plan to always give at least 2 days notice for any changes I make to the readings, papers etc., and to also make any important announcements in class. To contact the whole class, send a message to dominationresistance_sp18@rams.rutgers.edu.

Discussion Topics and Required Readings

Please do the reading corresponding to a class in advance of that class.
Week 1. Introduction to Course. Situating Resistance within Theories of Power and Domination (January 22)

Excerpts from Lukes, 2005, Power: A Radical View, p. 6-11; 35-38; 85-99; 144-151

Recommended Readings:

Week 2. Conceptions and Theories of Resistance (January 29)

Recommended Readings:

Ch. 2 in Schock’s Civil Resistance Today.

Scheuerman, William E. 2017 “What is Political Resistance?” Public Seminar

Week 3. Non-violent Resistance and the American Civil Rights Movement (Feb. 5)

King, Mary Elizabeth (2011) “How We Made the Media Pay Attention.” Waging Nonviolence, September 16.

Recommended Reading:

Critical perspective re: nonviolence: https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_OReGYJtnTE

Harris, Fredrick. 2015. “The Next Civil Rights Movement?” Dissent

Gould-Wartofsky, Michael. 2015. “When Rioting is Rational” Jacobin Mag

Resnikoff Ned. 2014. “Think riots have never caused change in America? Think again.”

Recommended Readings:

Muhammad, Khalil. 2015. “Black Silent Majority” by Michael Javen Fortner”

Week 5. Resistance among the Poor and Powerless (Feb. 19).

Rios, Victor. Punished, Ch. 5

Recommended Readings:

Week 6. Digital Activism and Hacktivism (Feb. 26).

Recommended Reading:

Gil de Ziga, Veenstra, Vraga, and Shah “Digital Democracy: Reimagining Pathways to Political Participation”

Week 7. Resistance of Government Secrecy and Surveillance (March 5).

Recommended Reading:

Spring Break March 12.

Week 8. Trumpism as Resistance and Resisting Trump (March 19)
Piven Frances Fox 2016. "Throw Sand in the Gears of Everything"
Warrington, Ruby "Inside Teen Vogue: 'Our readers consider themselves activists'”
Chris Hedges “How ‘Antifa’ Mirrors the ‘Alt-Right’”

Recommended Reading:

Afriqi Lena , “A true general strike is possible in Trump’s America”

Week 9. Role of Intellectuals in Domination and Resistance (March 26).

Goldrick-Rab, Sara “On Scholarly Activism” Contexts
Soave, Robby “The Wild World of Oppression Studies”
Nikita Carney and Alex Kulick “Rethinking Academia and Social Justice: Reflections from Emerging Scholars”

Week 10. Resistance in Education (April 2).

Blum, Linda & Shelley Kimelberg “Protecting Our Children: Paradoxes of Resistance in an Era of Neoliberal Education”

Fernández, Jessica et. al. “Strategies for Systemic Change: Youth Community Organizing to Disrupt the School-to-Prison Nexus”

Week 11. Resisting Corporate Power and Economic Inequality (April 9)

Murray and Schwartz "Moral Economy, Structural Leverage, and Organizational Efficacy: Class Formation and the Great Flint Sit-Down Strike, 1936–1937"

Mock, Brentin A New Divestment Movement Against Trump Gears Up JUN 21, 2017

Recommended Reading:

Week 12. Resisting Patriarchy (April 16)

Recommended Reading:

Garber, Megan “Is This the Next Step for the #MeToo Movement?”

Moghadam, Valentine "Islamism, Feminism, and Resistance: Rethinking the Arab Spring"

Week 13. Resistance Across the Globe (April 23)

Mona Lilja, Mikael Baaz, Michael Schulz & Stellan Vinthagen (2017)

McQuade, Joseph “The forgotten violence that helped India break free from colonial rule.” The Conversation.

Week 14. Repression, Backlash, and Student presentations (April 30).

Recommended Reading:

Final Papers will be due by May 6th at 5 p.m.