COURSE DESCRIPTION

We are asked to confront “social problems” every day: those issues, situations, behaviors and ideas, which are perceived and labeled as problematic and for which a solution is seen as possible and necessary. In this class, we will be learning about some of these social problems. But we will also be learning about what constitutes a social problem. Who, for example, defines what a social problem is? Why do some social problems receive so much attention, while others are ignored? And what are the impacts of defining social problems in a particular way? We will examine these questions drawing on case studies of contemporary issues, like income inequality, inequality, health care, and climate change.

CORE CURRICULUM LEARNING GOALS

This course meets the following core curriculum requirements:

- Understand the bases and development of human and societal endeavors across time and place.
- Identify and critically assess ethical issues in social science and history.
- Apply concepts about humans and social behavior to particular questions or situations.

REQUIRED READINGS

2) I have required articles that are available on the course website (sakai). These articles are identified with below with an asterisk.
Textbook is available at the Rutgers University Bookstore and on reserve at Alexander Library.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

LECTURES & READINGS

The course is organized around readings, lectures, films, and current event presentations. Lecture time is used to clarify the reading material, to present additional material related to the readings, screen films, and hold in-class exercises. Lectures are designed to explain and complement the reading materials, but you will be tested on reading material even if we do not cover it in class. Assigned material must be read prior to class. It is highly unlikely that you can pass the course without attending lectures. Powerpoint presentations will be posted to the course website, but these will only provide an outline of the day’s lecture. If you do miss a lecture, please ask a classmate for notes.

This is a large class and I will be lecturing much of the time. I do, however, encourage discussion. My questions during lecture are not rhetorical and I encourage you to participate in class discussion and group work.

Social problems are often controversial and inevitably somebody will voice an opinion that you find disagreeable or even offensive. In this classroom, we will agree to respect each other, even if we don’t like what each other has to say about the world. That means that we can disagree, but we must do so respectfully.

The films listed on the syllabus will be shown as time permits. Only films shown in class will be included in test material. If you miss a film during class, you may view the film in the media center at Mabel Smith Library on Douglass Campus. Films will be on hold for one week after the date shown in class.

ASSESSMENTS

Your grade will be determined by your performance on three non-cumulative exams. The exams will cover all course material, including lecture and reading material, films shown in class, and guest lectures. Please bring pencils and Rutgers RUID to all exams. No additional time will be granted if you are late to the exams.

Make up exams will only be allowed under extraordinary circumstances. See below.

Cheating will result in a failing grade on the exam and a referral to the appropriate Dean’s office.

I will hold an online review session before each exam. Time will be announced in class and via email.

EXCUSED ABSENCES FROM EXAMS/QUIZZES

No makeups will be given unless there are severe, extenuating circumstances. Personal holidays, broken alarm clocks, weddings, jobs, exams in other courses, and the Rutgers bus system are not acceptable reasons for missing an exam. If there are conflicts between exam days and your personal schedule, you should withdraw from the course. There will be no opportunity for extra credit.

ATTENDANCE

Students are expected to attend all classes. An attendance sheet will be distributed 15 minutes after class has started. You may not sign the sheet if you come late. Students who leave early will have to sign out and will be counted as absent.

Attendance will be considered when establishing a final grade. Students who miss 3 or fewer classes will be given a 2% increase (6 points) to their final grade.

COMMUNICATION

Please feel free to ask me questions during and after class. I also encourage you to schedule appointments with me by email. When corresponding by email, please make sure that you write “Soc 103” and your name in the subject line. If you do not do this, your email may get lost.

Please do not email me at the last minute, as it may take me up to 48 hours to respond to your email.
CLASS CONDUCT AND GROUND RULES

The Department of Sociology encourages the free exchange of ideas in a safe, supportive, and productive classroom environment. To facilitate such an environment, students and faculty must act with mutual respect and common courtesy. Thus, behavior that distracts students and faculty is not acceptable. Such behavior includes cell phone use, surfing the internet, checking email, text messaging, listening to music, reading newspapers, leaving and returning, leaving early without permission, discourteous remarks, and other behaviors specified by individual instructors. Courteous expression of disagreement with the ideas of the instructor or fellow students is, of course, permitted and strongly encouraged.

DIVERSITY STATEMENT

The Rutgers Sociology Department strives to create an environment that supports and affirms diversity in all manifestations, including race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, religion, age, social class, disability status, region/country of origin, and political orientation. We also celebrate diversity of theoretical and methodological perspectives among our faculty and students and seek to create an atmosphere of respect and mutual dialogue. We have zero tolerance for violations of these principles and have instituted clear and respectful procedures for responding to such grievances.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

I follow the Rutgers University’s policy on academic integrity. You can familiarize yourself with this policy at this website: http://academicintegrity.rutgers.edu/files/documents/AI_Policy_9_01_2011.pdf

Violations include: cheating, fabrication, plagiarism, denying others access to information or material, and facilitating violations of academic integrity.

Cheating and plagiarism will not be tolerated and I am obligated to report such conduct and violations of this policy to the Undergraduate Director of the Sociology Department and the Dean of your college.
